

The main body of the document is a dense, multi-column table. The text is extremely faint and mostly illegible due to the quality of the scan. The table appears to have several columns, with some headers visible at the top. The data rows are packed closely together, filling most of the page area below the header section.

